THE MOVE

Ask from genuine interest -> Open-ended -> Follow up on what they said

START HERE

Ask one question in your next conversation that you are genuinely curious about — not to make a point, not to steer, just to understand.

SAY THIS

Curiosity Openers	"What made you want to do it that way?"
Follow-Up Questions	"Say more about that."
Quick Curiosity	"What happened there?"
Professional Curiosity	"What would change your estimate?"
Curiosity Under Fire	"Before I respond — what is the strongest version of your concern?"

AVOID

- When the other person has clearly signalled they do not want to discuss the topic further.
- In time-pressured situations where questions derail rather than deepen.
- When used to gather information while performing interest — the inauthenticity will eventually surface.

REMEMBER

Ask the question you do not know the answer to.
