THE MOVE

Still baseline -> Deliberate movement -> Gestures that reinforce the point

START HERE

Before your next important conversation or presentation, notice your default physical behaviour. Set a still baseline. Move only when you mean to.

SAY THIS

Grounding Phrases	"Let me say this plainly."
Recovery Phrases	"[Plant feet. Pause. Continue.]"
Spoken Anchors	"I am going to stay right here for this part, because it matters."
Stillness as Attention	"Let me put my phone away — you have my full attention."
Reading the Room B...	"I know I have gone very still — that is me concentrating, not switching off."

AVOID

- In casual, high-energy social settings where measured movement reads as stiff or unnatural.
- When genuine urgency requires rapid physical movement.
- When your natural movement style is already composed — over-engineering it creates self-consciousness.

REMEMBER

Plant first, speak second.
