Support Response over Shift Response

Phase 5 Batch 1 v24 - full standalone TC001-grade Top500 technique package

Use it when

Best for: Someone shares news, stress, an achievement, disappointment or story You feel a strong urge to say "me too" You want reciprocity without taking over Group conversations where quick hijacks are common Avoid when: The other person directly asks about your experience The conversation has clearly moved into mutual exchange Your...

Say this

That sounds intense - what was that like? | That sounds like it took real effort. What was the key obstacle? | That sounds rough. What was the hardest bit?

Core formula

Notice the shift impulse -> support their thread -> invite one more detail -> share only if it adds value -> return to them

Avoid this failure

The main failure mode is hijacking their moment with your own story, then calling it connection. The opposite failure is never sharing back and turning the conversation into an interview.

Use to increase clarity, ease and respect - not to pressure, extract or override autonomy.

Support Response over Shift Response

Phase 5 Batch 1 v24 - full standalone TC001-grade Top500 technique package

Neighbour distinction

TC007 No One-Upping Discipline: TC007 prevents competitive escalation; TC002 sequences support before self-reference. | TC009 Anti-Boomerasking Discipline: TC009 prevents fake questions used to talk about yourself; TC002 handles genuine related self-disclosure.

Recovery phrase

I jumped to my version too fast - what happened with yours? Let me stay with your point for a second

Practice drill

Five-minute drill: write three real situations from the last week where this technique would have helped

Calibration cue

They add more detail after your support line Their tone relaxes rather than tightens They ask for your related experience They continue the same thread rather than giving short answers If the person gives shorter answers, looks tense or corrects the frame, lower intensity immediately.

Use to increase clarity, ease and respect - not to pressure, extract or override autonomy.
