

THE MOVE

Receive -> Appreciate -> Summarise -> Ask -> Receive: give full attention and take in what they actually said. -> Appreciate: acknowledge the contribution or feeling with a small, genuine signal. -> Summarise: reflect the core meaning back in one ?

START HERE

Silently run the four steps, then say one line that reflects the core point back and asks a single useful question — without ever naming the framework.

SAY THIS

Quick reflect-and-ask	"So the main thing is X — have I got that right?"
Receive & appreciate	"Thanks for laying that out — I can tell you've thought about it."
Meetings & email	"Let me summarise where we've landed: we're aligned on the timeline, and you want to revisit the budget."
Summarise & ask	"The key point seems to be X. What would be useful to explore next?"
Reset the structure	"I made that too structured — let me say it more simply."
Sensitive & emotional	"Before I try to tidy this up — how are you actually doing with it?"

AVOID

- Urgent instruction, where people need to act rather than be summarised
- Legalistic correction or fixed procedure
- High-risk decisions that need direct, immediate action

REMEMBER

Scaffolding, not the conversation.
