

THE MOVE

Shared anchor + difference-respect + next cooperative move. -> "As [accurate shared role/goal], we both care about [outcome]. I know we may differ on [route/timing]. Could we [next small step]?" -> Short form: "We both care about ?

START HERE

Name one small, true "we": "We both care about [shared outcome], even if we see the route differently."

SAY THIS

|                         |                                                                                            |
|-------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Quick same-side ope...  | "Same side here."                                                                   |
| Social / rapport        | "We're both trying to make this less awkward, I think."                             |
| Work / handoffs         | "We're on the same side of wanting a clean handoff."                                |
| Conflict / same-side    | "I don't think we're enemies here; I think we're protecting different concerns."    |
| High-pressure / time    | "We share the need to move quickly without creating a bigger cleanup."              |
| Boundary-safe / opti... | "I don't want to overstate the common ground, but I think we both care about this." |

AVOID

- The shared identity is not true, or you are only assuming it.
- The other person is trying to establish a boundary.
- The phrase would land as forced intimacy.

REMEMBER

Use the smallest true "we."
