

THE MOVE

You [specific action] despite [friction/constraint], and that [impact/choice] matters.
-> You kept this moving even with unclear inputs, and that made the decision easier. -> You came back to the conversation instead of avoiding it, and I ?

START HERE

Name the one effort you can actually see, in a single sentence, before you move to feedback or the next task:
 "That took effort. I see it."

SAY THIS

Minimum viable	"That took effort. I see it."
Professional	"You clearly did the hard part of gathering the details before bringing this here."
Digital / written	"Thanks for laying this out clearly. I can see the work you put into making it easy to respond to."
Feedback without era...	"I want to recognise the work first, then talk about the revision."
Social and relational	"You have been trying to handle this carefully. That matters."
Conflict and repair	"I noticed you slowed down instead of escalating. I appreciate that effort."

AVOID

- The effort claim is being used to avoid accountability for harm or poor conduct.
- You do not actually know whether effort was present - you would be guessing.
- The person wants a practical decision, not recognition.

REMEMBER

Name the work before you judge the work.
