

Impact Medium · Difficulty Easy-Medium · Misuse risk The main failure mode is adding a fake or overlong comment that feels

THE MOVE

Hear the content -> make one relevant comment -> ask one question -> stop and listen. -> Short form: notice -> name or respond -> invite -> calibrate -> release. -> "That sounds like a big shift. What made you decide?" -> "That's a lot to weigh u...

START HERE

Say one honest comment, then ask one clean question: "That sounds like a big shift. What made you decide?"

SAY THIS

Quick openers	"That's a big shift. What changed?"
Social & rapport	"That sounds like a big shift. What changed for you?"
Work & discovery	"That's useful context. What was the main constraint?"
Getting to the specifics	"That's the crux of it. What exactly are you asking me to decide?"
Softening & sensitive...	"That sounds like it wasn't easy to talk about. Can I ask what the turning point was?"
Conflict & pressure	"I can see this really frustrated you. What did it cost you on your end?"

AVOID

- The situation needs a direct, urgent answer
- The comment would be fake
- You are already stacking several questions

REMEMBER

One real comment buys one clean question.