

- Formula: Open questions -> Affirmations -> Reflections -> Summaries
- Move: choose the next listening move from open question, affirmation, reflection or summary
- Minimum: What feels most important here? You have already done a lot with this. It sounds like X. Let me check I have that right.
- Best for: coaching, mentoring, supportive conversations, behaviour-change discussions and autonomy-sensitive moments
- Avoid when: urgent instruction, rapid briefing or situations where direct information is clearly requested
- Failure mode: sounding like a formula instead of a person
- Neighbour: Reflective Listening - Use OARS when the Open questions -> Affirmations -> Reflections -> Summaries structure is the main need; use Reflective Listening when that adjacent move better serves the moment.
- Neighbour: Summary Check - Use OARS when the Open questions -> Affirmations -> Reflections -> Summaries structure is the main need; use Summary Check when that adjacent move better serves the moment.
