

- Formula: Situation -> Behaviour -> Impact
- Move: give feedback by naming the specific situation, the observable behaviour, and its impact without attacking character or intention
- Minimum: In situation X, I noticed behaviour Y. The impact was Z.
- Best for: specific feedback, workplace coaching, supervision, debriefs, accountability conversations and praise that needs to be concrete
- Avoid when: fresh conflict, shame-heavy conversations, vague impressions, or situations where you cannot name an observable behaviour
- Failure mode: slipping from behaviour into character judgement or assumed motive
