

THE MOVE

Situation -> Behaviour -> Impact. -> In situation X, I noticed behaviour Y. The impact was Z. -> In this morning's client call, you answered before Priya finished. The client looked unsure who to follow. -> In the review, you flagged the risk earl...

START HERE

Name one specific situation, the observable behaviour you actually saw, and the concrete impact it had — then stop and listen.

SAY THIS

Framing starters	"Can I give you a quick bit of feedback?"
Concrete praise	"In the review, you flagged the risk early — it saved us a fortnight."
Work feedback	"In yesterday's client call, you answered before the brief was finished. The client looked unsure afterwards."
Naming the behaviour	"The behaviour I'm describing is the interrupting, not you as a person."
Softening and recove...	"I made that too structured — let me say it more simply."
Sensitive and charged	"This one's a bit awkward to raise, so bear with me."

AVOID

- Fresh conflict where emotion is still running high
- Shame-heavy conversations that need warmth before structure
- Vague impressions you cannot tie to an observable behaviour

REMEMBER

Scaffolding, not the conversation
