

Careful normalising

Make the reaction understandable without making the problem smaller.

Core move

Link the person's reaction to specific context, pressure or history so it feels understandable and dignified.

Formula

Given [context], [reaction] makes sense. That does not mean [problem] is okay; it means your response has a reason.

Avoid

Do not use "normal" to minimize, excuse harm, hurry emotion or pressure someone to accept poor treatment.

Recovery

I do not mean normal as in acceptable. I mean your reaction makes sense in context.
