

THE MOVE

We got interrupted. You were saying [the specific thread]. Want to pick that back up? -> Minimum: "You were saying [X] - want to continue?" -> High-care: "We got interrupted right as you got to [X]. I do not want to lose that if it still feels useful - ?

START HERE

You were saying [X] before we got interrupted - want to pick that back up?

SAY THIS

|                           |                                                                                                         |
|---------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Quick bridges             | "You were saying - want to pick that back up?"                                                   |
| Social / everyday         | "You were telling me about your weekend before we got interrupted - want to keep going?"         |
| Meetings / work           | "Before we were interrupted, you were outlining the risk around timing. Please carry on."        |
| Calls, video & messa...   | "The call froze right as you were explaining the customer issue. Could you continue from there?" |
| Firm under pressure       | "We need to keep moving, but I do not want to lose that point. Give us the short version."       |
| Protecting a quieter v... | "I want to make sure we do not lose Priya's point. Priya, you were on the dependency issue."     |

AVOID

- Physical safety or an immediate emergency takes priority.
- The other person clearly changed the subject to protect themselves.
- The interruption revealed a higher priority or a genuine emergency.

REMEMBER

Do not ask people to rebuild a thread you can restore for them.